

Figure 10

This view of the Fry and Jefferson map shows a trail continuing west of Gist's Settlement, and on to the Ohio valley. West of Gist's, this trail was located on the south side of the Ohio River, and is clearly much different from the trail that is shown on the Lewis Evans map. That route, which is partially described by Evans and described in more detail by Trent's biographer Goodman, ran past Fort Duquesne and Logstown, and on to the Twightwee villages.
