This interesting list of names was found among some old papers and brought to the Historical Center to be copied. The same names also appear on another list headed Londonderry Township Appeals Duplicate — 1800. In 1800 Londonderry Township was annexed to Somerset County, Pa. and later known as Southampton Township. Many of these names with slightly different spelling are still found there. "Rockland" might have been an appropriate name for part of that township! Who can tell us anything more about this forgotten name? Note that the list is alphabetized by first names!
